

The causes of WORLD WAR II

By JOSHUA HALLAM

The Start of WWII

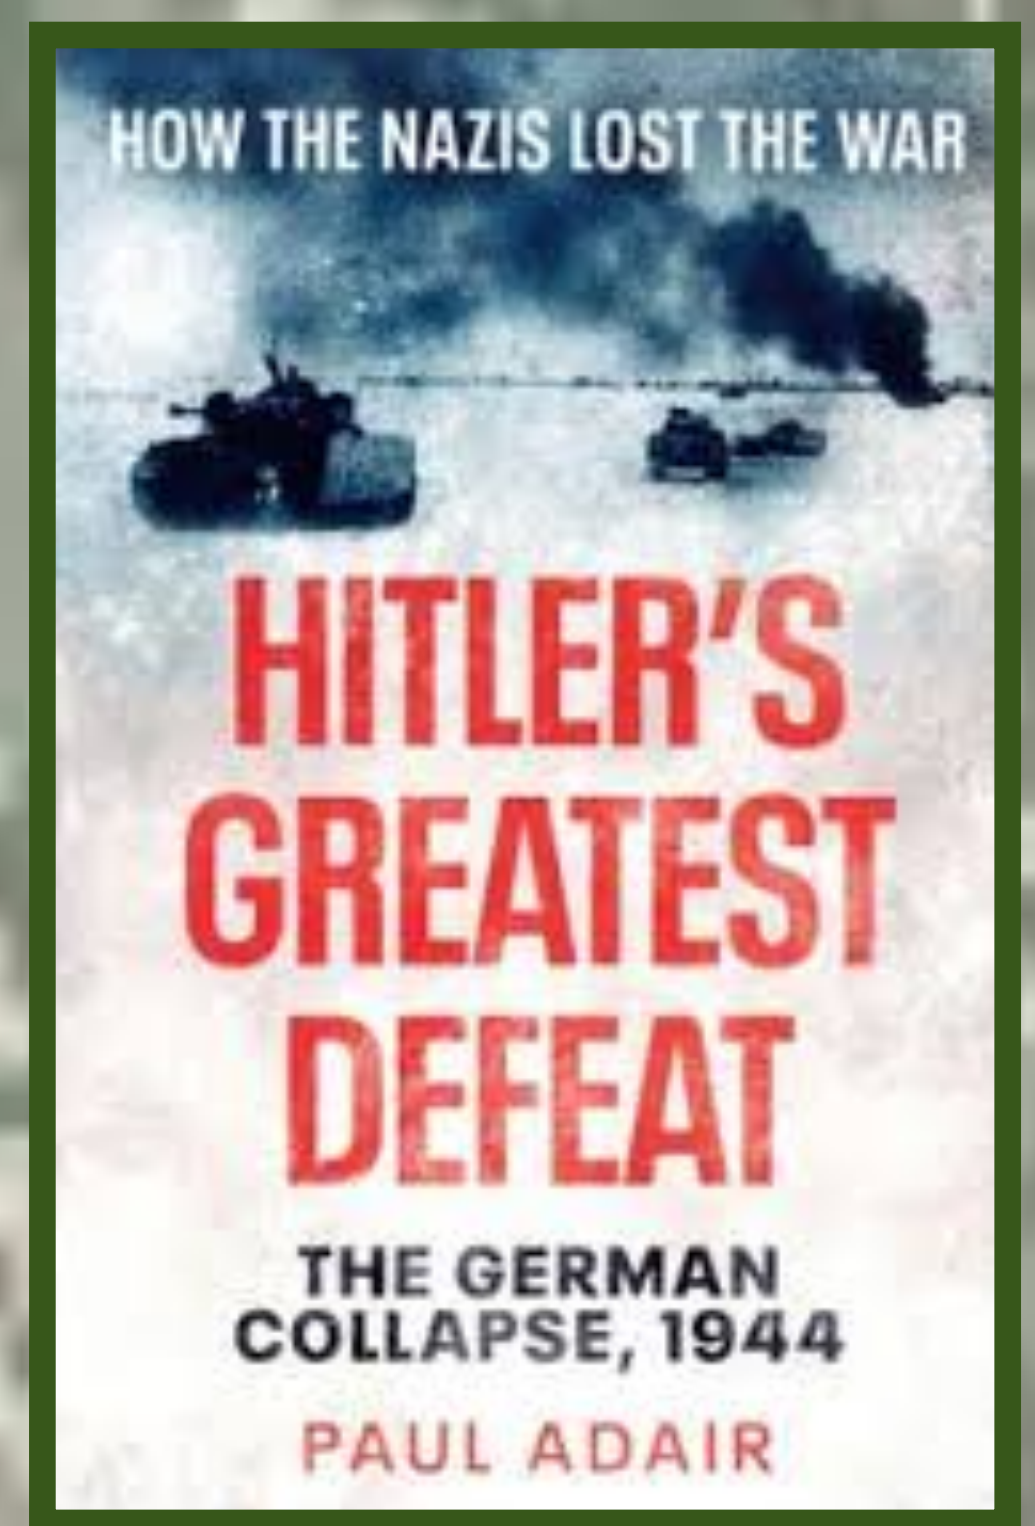

After defeat in WWII Germany had to give up land and pay penalties. they also could not build up a navy or army.

Britain and France vowed to protect Poland from German invasion.

In Germany, the Nazi hatred spread and caused the Holocaust. Jews, Poles, Roma people, the disabled and gay people were killed— as well as those that stood up to the

Nazis

In 1933, Neville Chamberlain (British prime minister) declared war on Germany as the Germans had not withdrawn troops from Poland.

RATIONING

Rationing was when the UK had food restrictions for everybody. Also if you were a child or pregnant you would have different food amounts. You would be given a ration book and if you lost it you will not be given any food.

The Great Depression (a global economic disaster) hit, so the Germans had food, job and money shortages. They were very angry.

The nazis believed they were superior reach and that under Hitler, they would gain control of Europe, which they thought they deserved.
