

"A marvellous school trip "

Review date: 17th September 2018

On Thursday 13th September we visited the Natural History Museum on a school trip. Because we are learning about Evolution, the dinosaur exhibit was a place we didn't miss. I recommend using a map otherwise you might get lost. Luckily the museum is spilt up into zones-the Blue, Red and green zone. The highlight of my day was the dinosaur area because now I am very knowledgeable about them. Unfortunately, an interactive t-rex was being repaired. It was a great day out!

Reviewed by: Elissa Bramwell