

" TERRIFIC day out

Review date: 17th September 2018

I visited the Natural History Museum, because it is part of our Evolution topic. Conveniently, the museum is split into different coloured zones. I suggest you use the maps around because it is incredibly easy to get lost. I believe that the dinosaur skeletons are very amazing because of their condition. Unfortunately, the t -rex was out for repair therefore it was a little disappointing. But all the historic information was just as good. I highly recommend a trip to the earthquake room because it shows us what terrible times there were in the past .But on top of the list is the ginormous blue whale inside the Hintze Hall that is really quite a sight . It was mind blowing. I highly recommend a child that is older than 7. What a great family day out!
